Safety millage question up to residents

CANTON—Township board members have assumed a "hands-off" policy concerning the possibility of a special election for a safety millage.

Any attempt for a special safety millage will have to come from the citizens of the township explained Treasurer Carl Parsell.

Parsell added, "Morally, I don't think we can place this on the ballot again without a proven desire on the part of the township residents. We'll have to have a strong indication from the people that they want a vote before we try for a special election."

Supervisor Robert Greenstein concurred, "The people have spoken twice, and as much as we'd like to se the new fire station, we can't really try again on our own. We can't ram the thing down the peoples' throats.

The millage proposal allowed for a three mill tax on real and on personal property for the next 10 years "to provide more effective fire and police protection to all areas of the township."

Had the millage passed, the money would have provided for the construction and staffing of a second fire station in the township.

But Canton residents shot it down twice at the ballot box, once in the August primary, by a 932-907 margin, and again in the general election by 276 votes, 2,449-2,173.

While township board members still feel there is "a great need" for a second fire station, they have indicated that the initiative for a special millage election will have to come from the public.

Parsell said, "They'll have to start a petition drive or show us a strong desire some other way in order to vote on it again."

Teacher walkouts averted by court

PLYMOUTH—Many school administrators, teachers and school board members breathed a mild sigh of relief last Thursday when a three-judge panel removed, at least temporarily, the possibility of a teacher walkout in the Plymouth schools.

School Supt. John M. Hoben said his only concern was to keep the schools open and declined comment after the circuit court panel's decision placing the striking Crestwood teachers back on the jobs today (Monday).

A RECORDED message by Plymouth Education Association President Dolly Carter McMaster Thursday said that grievances were pending against the actions of the superintendent for "unilaterally" revoking personal business days for teachers last Tuesday and Wednesday.

Hoben said the charges were unfounded, noting that it would have been the case if teachers staged a walkout supporting the Crestwood teachers.

Additional attempts to contact Mrs. McMaster both Thursday and Friday were unsuccessful.

School board trustee Thomas Yack said his first reaction to the court decision was one of relief. "I knew that the crisis we were confronting would go away, at least for a while.

"The board can now get back to a review of the budget and our proposed in-service program," Yack said.

The trustee said he felt Public Act 379, removing the rights of teachers to strike, "hasn't worked for a long time. If anything good has come of this situation, it will be to stir the legislature into action."

BOARD SECRETARY Marcia Borowski said she felt personally relieved that classes would not be disrupted. She echoed Yack's sentiments, noting, "The Crestwood situation just points out the need for new legislation... legislation that leaves everyone just a little unhappy."

Mrs. Borowski noted that neither side (teachers or board members) is currently subject to penalties in the event of a teacher walkout, and she suggested legislation which would force both sides to do more battling at the bargaining table.

She stressed that the pressure has to be applied on legislators, but quickly added, "I'm not sure any of them feel the urgency of the situation the way I do. And that distresses me."

Trustee George Lawton said he thought the Crestwood decision had no particular effect on Plymouth, but he joined with other board members in suggesting that teachers should be granted the right to strike, "but also given the penalty of loss of pay in the event of a strike, just like other workers."

Crestwood staff plans to return

By DENNY COFFMAN

DEARBORN HEIGHTS—Crestwood District schools are set to open today (Monday) either to 186 formerly striking teachers or to 150 teachers hired after the Crestwood Board of Education fired striking teachers.

Edward Homeier, the board's attorney, has been seeking a stay of execution from the Michigan Court of Appeals after the board was ordered by Wayne County Circuit Court to reinstate the striking teachers.

The office of Supt. Robert Rutila reported attendance of students and new teachers Friday remained the same as it had been during the week—about 90 per cent.

EVEN IF the district's regular teachers return to work today, it will undoubtedly take a long time for the wounds created by the strike to heal.

Teachers hired to replace the strikers, have reported tire slashings and threats on their lives.

One of the new female teachers claimed pickets followed her home and tried to run her off the road.

The atmosphere the returning teachers encounter will be markedly different from the one that greeted non-union teachers.

Parents volunteered to help the non-union teachers and morale in school buildings was generally high.

The board had paid the non-union teachers on a contractual basis. Though their salaries were not as high as those demanded by striking teachers, they far exceeded the substitute pay many were receiving before coming to Crestwood.

Most of the non-union teachers regarded their week in Crestwood as a chance to draw paychecks far higher than they were accustomed to, if only for a short time.

REGARDLESS OF who teaches Crestwood students today, the three-judge circuit court panel which ordered the re-hiring of Crestwood teachers found little praise for either side.

Edward Ellman, attorney for the Michigan Education Association, described the case as "very confusing," and the three judges, in trying to sort out the legal intricacies of the matter, would certainly agree.

As Judge George Bowles expressed it in his majority statement:

"The majority concurs in Judge Joseph Rashid's holding that both parties are in open and flagrant defiance and violation of his honor's orders. The majority deplores such defiance. It also deplores resorting to any unlawful strikes, termed 'sympathy

THE WATER OF the Rouge River, flowing through the city of Plymouth, and Plymouth and Canton townships, may overflow its banks one day, causing severe flood damage in the area. The U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development has designated the Plymouth-Canton area as flood-prone and is urging the communities to apply for eligibility under a federal flood insurance program. (Staff photo by Mitchell Booth.)

Flood insurance on the way?

By DARLENE STINSON

Plymouth-Canton residents may have to purchase federally-subsidized flood insurance to obtain federally-backed home improvement or real estate loans after July 1.

The U.S. Department of Housing and Development has identified the City of Plymouth, Plymouth Township and Canton Township as flood-hazard areas not enrolled in a national flood insurance program, as well as 105 other Michigan communities.

Unless governing bodies of those communities apply for entry into the program by July 1, the municipalities' federally-guaranteed loans and grants will be jeopardized, as well as residents' eligibility for FHA or bank loans on local real estate, mobile homes, or, in some cases, personal property.

Canton Township is already proceeding with its application, according to township clerk John Flodin, while the City of Plymouth is preparing its application and studying the matter, according to administrative assistant Ray Quada.

PLYMOUTH TOWNSHIP clerk Helen Richardson said the township board of trustees will discuss the matter at Tuesday's board meeting.

Although the Lower Rouge River and other creeks flow throgh Canton Township and the Middle Rouge River flows through the City of Plymouth and Plymouth Township, many local officials cannot understand why HUD has designated the Plymouth-Canton area as flood-prone.

"We're willing to cooperate, and we're going to take steps not to hurt residents of the City of Plymouth or anyone who will be living here in the future," said Quada. "But we'd like someone to tell us why we're considered a flood-hazard area."

Flodin expressed similar views concerning Canton Township.

"I've lived in this community all my life," Flodin said, and I don't know of anyone in this community who has ever lost a great deal from flooding. Canton is generally high and dry and not in that great of risk. The program has more value in some parts of the country than in Canton."

Plymouth Township rejected enrollment in the program last year, Mrs. Richardson said, because the board of trustees could see no danger of flooding in the township. The board made that decision, however, before rejection endangered federally-guaranteed grants and loans.

RICHARD WATT, an engineer for the hydrological survey division of the Michigan Department of Natural Resources, the agency administering the federal flood program for the state, said areas designated flood-prone are theoretically endangered by storms that occur once every 100 years.

"It's a large storm," Watt explained, "but a reasonable type of flood event. Just because people haven't experienced flooding doesn't mean that it can't happen eventually, and it probably will."

The drainage pattern of rivers flowing through communities identified as flood prone could cause flooding in such a storm, he said.

The three municipalities in the Plymouth-Canton area must apply for eligibility in the federal program and adopt resolutions to minimize the possibility of flooding in new buildings by July 1, Watt said, in order to guarantee eligibility for federal grants and loans.

FLODIN SAID Canton Township's building code already minimizes the prospect of flooding. The township board of trustees will soon discuss such a resolution, however, possibly at iis Jan. 28 meeting.

"Certain precuastions are taken at this level already in the process of platting land," Flodin said. "There are some safeguards already taken without being in the flood insurance program, although there's nothing wrong in entering in that."

Little land is left for building within the Plymouth city limits, noted city engineer Alan Gove, while land along the Rouge River is leased by Wayne County and classified as a parkway along Edward Hines Drive.

After July 1, residents or businessmen in the Plymouth-Canton area must obtain adequate flood insurance coverage before applications for federally-backed home or business improvement loans will be approved. Watt said. Prospective residents must obtain flood insurance before federally-backed mortgages are approved.

"The federal government is basically trying to cover the money they put out," Watt explained. "Sometimes (federally-mortgaged) structures in flood-prone areas are destroyed."

THE FEDERAL government will subsidize 90 per cent of the flood insurance rates, Watt said. Flood insurance costs to the homeowner will run 25 cents for each $100 of coverage to a maximum $35,000. Insurance on contents will run 35 cents for each $100 of coverage to a maximum $10,000.

Rates for multiple family dwellings will remain the same, Watt said, but

College budget request is up 8 per cent; under board study

By DENNY COFFMAN

The Schoolcraft College Board of Trustees Dec. 8 reviewed a proposed eight per cent increase in its 1975-76 general operating budget at a study session in the Garden City Instructional Center.

E. Frederick Petersen, manager of business services, presented an $8,766,529 budget to the board.

The budget, if approved, includes an income of $3.2 million from taxes; $1.9 million from student fees; $3.4 million from state appropriations; $148,830 from federal grants; $78,800 in carry-over funds from the 1974-75 budget; and $35,900 from other sources.

Because of the business recession, the college can expect only a slight increase in state equalized valuation (SEV), according to Petersen.

PETERSEN indicated he expects an increase in SEV of only seven per cent for 1975-76, one of the smallest increases ever.

By contrast, the SEV jumped 17.08 per cent in 1970-71. The 1974-75 fiscal year showed an increase of 8.25 per cent.

The Schoolcraft College district had levied 1.995 mills in 1974-75: 1.662 for operating expenses, 0.225 for debt retirement, and 0.148 for a special maintenance fund.

The new budget calls for a rate of 2.13 mills: 1.69 for operating expenses, 0.36 for debt retirement, and 0.08 for a special maintenance fund.

The SEV is not expected to rise markedly in the next year, according to Petersen, because of a decline in the number of new commercial and residential building starts within the college district.

Therefore, existing dwellings will be taxed at the somewhat higher rate.

State allocations to the district might be curtailed by as much as one and one-half per cent.

THE BOARD may have to consider a tuition increase for residents of the district, who now pay $11 a credit hour.

The increase would come if the state reduces appropriations to the college, and would probably raise the rate to $12 a credit hour.

The board will decide whether to increase either the millage rate or tuition, or both, after it reviews a comprehensive study of the district's finances and future growth plans at a Jan. 22 regular meeting on campus in Livonia.

SC offers help for unemployed

A special program for persons who are unemployed, underemployed or desiring mid-career employment changes gets underway at Schoolcraft College late in January.

Registration, which is free on a first-come basis, should be completed by contacting the college's community services office as early as possible and no later than Jan. 22. The college is located at 18600 Haggerty.

Known as the "productive employment search program," four Saturday sessions will be held on the Schoolcraft campus from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. on Jan. 25, Feb. 1, 8 and 22.

Topics to be covered in the sessions include the identification of career goals and interests, providing occupational information, assistance in preparing employment resumes, help in locating employers and successful job interviewing.

Sessions will be conducted by Schoolcraft counselors jean Pike and William Heise. Ms. Pike has been on staff since 1964, while Heise is one author of Schoolcraft's "systematic career counseling process."

Macomb launched a similar program last fall with 56 persons enrolled. In cooperation with Macomb, a $25,000 grant from Title I of the 1965 Higher Education Act will fund a number of programs in southeastern Michigan community colleges.

At Schoolcraft, the productive employment search program will be financed by a $1,000 grant, the college's allotment from the Title I funds accorded Macomb.

Beekeeping class in SC offerings

"Beekeeping for beginners," a new community services course offered by Schoolcraft College, may provide some comfort to persons stung by soaring sugar prices.

It is just one of the 25 new courses contained in the class schedule booklet recently mailed to all homes in the college district, which includes Livonia, Clarenceville, Plymouth, Garden City and Northville school districts.

Some of the others announced by Director Ron Griffith are real estate investment, beginning ceramics, equine reproduction, shopping and cooking for one, and advanced Transactional Analysis.

In all, the booklet includes schedule information and course descriptions for more than 140 classes, plus information on special programs for women and senior citizens and other community services offerings such as cultural and public affairs programs.

Mail-in registrations will be accepted until Jan. 24. On-campus registrations will be taken Feb. 19, 20 from noon to 7:30 p.m. in the registrar's office. The campus is at 18600 Haggerty between Six and Seven Mile Roads in Livonia.

Tuition and fees are payable by check, MasterCharge or Bank-Americard.

Besides the 13 classes at Schoolcraft's Instructional Center at Florence and Middle Belt in Garden City, other off-campus classes are in Livonia Stevenson and Plymouth Canton high schools, St. Mary Hospital on Levan north of Schoolcraft, and the Plymouth Center for Human Development.

Library paintings span a dozen years

CANTON—The rainbow colors of an art exhibit are brightening the stark white walls of the Plymouth Salem High School library these days.

"I walked in here one day, and all these blank walls were staring at me," said Jessie Hudson, who painted the abstract creations during the 12 years she has taught art in Plymouth.

"Most of these were stored in my basement, and I thought, 'I've got to get these up somewhere.' So I asked the librarian if she wanted an art exhibit."

MRS. HUDSON describes her paintings of bright and subdued colors, blocks, forms and shapes as "abstract landscapes."

The darkened, naked forms of trees shoot through the orange background of one painting, while bright chunks of colors depict the buildings of a town in another.

Born and reared in Scotland, Mrs. Hudson has always reserved a spot in her life for art and painting. As a teacher with a masters degree in fine arts from Eastern Michigan University, she packs summers and weekends with competitive art shows, paint brushes and canvases, and weaving looms and yarn.

"I think it's easy to get in a rut when you settle down to any phase of life," Mrs. Hudson maintains. "I've noticed the most successful art teachers are active artists.

"I think the very fact you're producing keeps you on your toes. If you're not a producing, competing artist, you don't have your toes in today's water. This applies to all fields."

CASTING A critical eye at one of her paintings, Mrs. Hudson said: "It's not quite as abstract as I'd like it to be. I think I'm still involved in the landscape a little too much.

"If you're not tied to a specific pictorial idea, you're more free to consider the painting in its basic ingredients—color, form and placement.

"I think our viewpoint is changing. Sometimes the things you see from an airplane are beautiful abstract compositions."

Mrs. Hudson said she gathers inspiration for many of her paintings from landscapes, poems and photographs in newspapers and magazines. Many paintings are inspired from her memories of Scotland.

"I'm especially inpressed with trees in the winter because you can really see the structure of the trees. The spaces between the forms are as important as the forms themselves."

Looking around the library, Mrs. Hudson said: "This is a good place for an exhibit, because you can get far enough away from the paintings to really see them."

The 25 paintings will remain on exhibit in the Salem High School library at least through February, she said. Although purpose of the exhibit is to brighten the walls and provide an art exposure to pupils, the paintings are for sale.

The library is open 7:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. Monday through Friday.

"We find most regrettable any pressure teachers calculated to induce or encourage a favorable result one way or another, before this honorable court. Such tactics manifest a cynical lack of understanding of how a court functions and judges make decisions.

"We are reaping in this case the wild whirlwind of an inadequate labor law. Indeed, we hope the Governor and Legislature in considering new legislation which is so desperately needed would declare as pre-eminent the best interests of the students and the school systems.

"The analogy to custody disputes is not inept—where we now recognize the "best interests" of the children, and not the desires and demands of the parents."

Bowles especially criticized the polarization of the community and advocated a "cooling off" presumably until legislation is passed to prevent future Crestwoods.

to a maximum coverage of $100,000 on the building and $10,000 on contents.

Rates for commercial buildings will run 40 cents for each $100 of coverage to a maximum $100,000, while rates for contents will run 75 cents for each $100 of coverage to a maximum $100,000.

After communities apply for eligibility in the flood insurance program, HUD engineers will conduct a detailed study of the flood plain in each community and double the maximum flood insurance coverage available, Watt said.

NEIGHBORING communities that must submit applications for the flood insurance program by the July 1 deadline include Northville and Sumpter Township.

Watt said such communities as Livonia, Redford Township, Ann Arbor and Farmington already have applied for the program and are eligible for the sub sidized rates. Other neighboring communities, such as Westland, Van Buren Township and Garden City have not been identified as flood-prone communities.

"There wasn't any systematic way HUD identified these flood-prone communities," Watt admits. "In most places, it was a pretty rough determination. More communites will probably be identified in the future."

Board decision nears for McIntyre sewers

By RICHARD GOLD

CANTON—Several years have elapsed since the residents of McIntyre Manor subdivision began their fight for a sanitary sewer. Early next month a final decision should be reached by the township board.

The subdivision, located at Ford and Sheldon roads, is currently "served" by drain fields that are no longer able to absorb the waste of the community. Residents say that in the summer their back yards turn into swamps as the effluence rises. The stench, they relate, is "unbearable."

Township Clerk John Flodin explains the problem. "The soil there is mostly clay base, and as a result it does not absorb well. Any sand pockets in the ground that might have absorbed well at one time, are no longer able to do the job."

The subdivision was platted "back in the late 1920s or early 1930s," according to the clerk, and presently there are about 75 homes in the subdivision.

LAST MARCH, residents of the community beseeched the township board for action.

In the summer, a bonding unit, the Canton-Van Buren Sewer and Water Authority, was formed. The previous township administration considered using it to float $2 million in bonds to constuct water and sewer facilities in "eight or nine" areas of the township including McIntyre.

At that time the McIntyre residents thought their problems were solved.

But the new administration voted to defer action on the bonding at its first meeting on Nov. 26, 1974. Supervisor Robert Greenstein said, "When you're dealing with large a sum of money, and it's not yours, you have an obligation as an elected official to make sure the money is being used the best way."

Instead, the board voted to discuss the problem and report back in 60 days. That time will be up in late January.

The response of McIntyre residents to the delay was vehement and several at the Nov. 26 meeting said they felt they were becoming "the ghetto of Canton Township." Others said they feared for their children, because of the possibility of a hepatitis outbreak.

SINCE THEN, the board has been doing its homework. Indications are that they will report back on the matter at their first meeting in February.

Greenstein explains that there are two definite parts to the sewer problem. The first concerns what kind of sewer facility should be installed and the second is who will pay for it.

Township engineer, Glenn Roberts has presented the board with three possibilities. "We can install gravity sewers, pressurized sewers, or we can use holding tanks," explained the engineer.

The gravity sewer system said the engineer, would provide link-ups with the trunkline that runs parallel to Ford Road. As the name implies, it would work by gravity and the sewage would flow downhill from Ford to Haggerty to the county trunkline by Michigan Avenue.

The pressurized system would involve smaller pipes and would utilize a pump that would push the sewage through. This system would entail use of compactor unit. Every homeowner would have a unit in his back yard to condense the waste before it was pumped into the trunkline.

The third possibility is the installation of holding tanks. Homeowners would have tanks installed in their yards which would have to be pumped out periodically.

A final possibility would be using all three systems in combination.

According to Roberts, the gravity sewer sytem is less expensive in the long run, while the holding tank concept would be the most expensive.

THE PRICE of the sewer system is thought to be between $300,000 and $500,000, depending on what type of sewer is installed and how extensive it is.

Roberts says, "It depends on how far we go. We can 'purchase' the whole subdivision, or we can limit the sewer to what's there right now. We can fully or partially service them."

The issue of who pays for the sewers is also unresolved. Greenstein calls the problem, "a moral dilemma."

There are several possibilites for payment of the sewer, including bonding to raise the necessary money, special assessments to the affected residents, or a combination of both, with the township and the residents dividing the tab.

Geer School teacher dies

PLYMOUTH—Mrs. Mary Louise Horwood, 40, former teacher at Geer Elementary School in Plymouth, died of a brain tumor at St. Joseph Hospital, Ann Arbor, on Tuesday, Jan. 4. Services were held on Tuesday, Jan. 7 at the Schrader Funeral Home.

Mrs. Horwood is survived by her husband, Robert, a son, Michael and a daughter, Nanelle, both of the home and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred L. Evans of Kingston, Ohio.

Since 1968, Mrs. Horwood had been one of two teachers at the one-room Geer School which includes grades one through five. She and fellow teacher, Mrs. Rita McClumpha, were two of a very few teachers who were keeping alive the one-room school concept, combining the best of the old with some of the newer techniques. The atmosphere of the picturesque school, 9981 W. Ann Arbor Rd., was always that of a family of children of different ages learning together.

Before joining the public school system, Mrs. Horwood, a graduate of Ohio University, worked with the Plymouth Cooperative Nursery and later the Huron Council of Cooperative Nurseries and the 4-H Clubs. She later taught at South Salem Stone School and Gallimore School.

Due to her illness and the teacher's strike, Mrs. Horwood taught only a few days last fall.

In addition to her immediate family, Mrs. Horwood is survived by a brother, Fred Evans of Bainbridge, Ohio, and two sisters, Mrs. Sonja White of Bainbridge, and Mrs. Linda Wolfe of Circleville, Ohio.

Burial was in the Lapham Cemetery of Washtenaw County.

By DOC MINARD

It seems a bit early to talk about the thoroughbreds since the Detroit Racing Association meeting isn't scheduled to open until Feb. 21 but there's more than a little activity at the big mile track.

In the first place, more than 200 horses checked into the track in mid-December to start training for the 1975 season. Probably the real reason was that most didn't have any place else to go and it was cheaper for owners and trainers to stay at the DRC than to ship to some southern track.

Be that as it may, there have been that many horses working out daily on the outer edge of the track and Director of Racing Tom Dorsey expects an additional 300 or more in the next two weeks.

DORSEY BELIEVES the 30-day early meeting will be one of the better ones presented in Michigan. He has received stall applications from Pete Maxwell, the Audley and Shinrone stables and has Assistant Racing Secretary Bob Clark touring the south for additional stables.

"At this time, I believe this will be our best late winter meeting," Dorsey said, "We have received inquiries from trainers and owners in the east and south and expect to have most of the 1,700 stalls filled by the time we open."

DRA Vice President and General Manager Dick Wilson is expected back from the sunny south next week at which time the track will open negotiations with the mutual clerks union.

Inasmuch as this opens the union talks, all of the track managements will be following it closely. In the past the pattern has been set by either Hazel Park or the Detroit Racing Association and the oither associations fall in line.

This year's negotiations are expected to be complicated by the question of payment for Sunday work. Last spring Wilson rejected a double time demand from the union. But the DRA had a contract then foir everything but Sunday racing and now everything starts from scratch.

IT WILL be interesting to see what develops once the two groups sit down and start talking money. It could be the negotiations will hit a stumbling block that may delay the Feb. 21 opening.

The thoroughbred tracks also are opening contract talks with the horsemen over purse distribution and this may develop into one of the most bitter bargaining sessions in recent years.

The thoroughbred tracks have been seeking some relief from the State Legislature in the form of an additional one per cent of the mutual handle. To date no action has been taken but then the Legislature has just started and hs such pressing matters as what to do about school strikes and teachers unions and steps to take to balance the budget again.

So the next month or six weeks should be interesting. They could well spell the success of racing in Michigan during 1975.

FROM THE STABLE area at Northville Downs one hears tales that a group of concerned citizens are in the process of filing a petition with the attorney general asking for an investigation of the method of awarding horse racing dates.

'Tis a bit hard to learn the names of the leaders but from those who have been listening, it appears the movement will attempt to show that pressure may have been exerted in the awarding of the harness racing meetings.

Naturally Northville is much interested in this since Racing Commissioner Leo Shirley took away all summer dates from the 'Downs and gave back-to-back campaigns to Hazel Park and Wolverine.

There are many in the suburban city who contend the result will be a big dent in the money Northville receives from the state as its share of the mutual handle. State law provides that a city with a track within its limits shall receive 20 per cent of the state's share of the wagering up to a maximum of $700,000.

Northville city officials contend that wagering would be higher in the summer than in the winter and thus there is a good chance the city's share will be lower than it should be.

Mrs. Griffiths was U.S. representative in the 17th, which also includes Southfield and Farmington, since 1955 until making a decision to retire this past year. She didn't seek re-election in November 1974.

DURING HER most recent term in Congress, she served on the Ways and Means Committee, Joint Economic Committee, and the new House Committee on the Budget.

A Democrat, her legislative interests were directed primarily toward social security, the medicare program, tax and welfare reform, and fiscal policy matters.

She sponsored the Equal Rights Amendment (ERA) and diligently guided its passage through the House in the 91st Congress.

Mrs. Griffiths, an attorney, served in the Michigan Legislature from 1949-52 and in 1953 was judge and recorder of Detroit Recorder's Court.

SHE EARNED a BA from the University of Missouri and her law degree from the University of Michigan. She was admitted to the State Bar of Michigan in 1941.

The new director is affiliated with the Detroit and Michigan Bar Associations, National Association of Women Lawyers, and the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs.

Among her many honors are the annual award of the League of Industrial Democracy in 1971, the 1974 woman of the year by Ladies' Home Journal, and the award of the Coalition for a Democratic Majority in 1974.

Red Cross reports

Layoffs hurt blood donations

The auto industry layoffs have had an unfortunate side affect on blood donations in the southeastern Michigan area.

Gary Jergens, who along with Dawn Rice is a Red Cross blood recruiter, working out of the Northwest Regional Office in Livonia says the layoffs have seriously affected the blood supply.

THE RECRUITERS are well aware that blood donations traditionally drop during holiday periods.

Consequently to meet their goal of 180,000 pints annually for the southeastern five-county area, they schedule blood drives from industries such as Ford Stamping during the Christmas and Easter holidays to pick up the slack.

"Most blood, particularly during holiday seasons," Jergens says, "come from the auto companies. The auto industries contribute about 50 per cent of our yearly supply."

With this heavy resource gone because of shutdowns, Jergens and his fellow recruiters have had to generate new sources of blood supply.

TO MEET the shortage, Jergens has been contacting local church and civic groups.

He and Miss Rice have also been recruiting through the high schools. The recruiters have been out to Bently, Franklin in Livonia and most of the other high schools in the area to contact the 18 year olds. Eighteen is the minimum age for donors.

"The 18-year-olds are some of our best donors. They keep appointments and tend to be more regular than other age groups."

The 'Save A Life' blood campaign initiated by the Red Cross and held Sunday, Dec. 29, helped focus on the need.

As a result of the publicity on the effort, the donations at the Northwest center jumped from 40 pints during the first week of December to 131 pints for the week beginning Dec. 23 and this was a four day week. On Dec. 29, the day,s total was 243.

Jergens says things are dropping off now, but adds, "We are a little bit past the crunch of the holiday shortage."

THOSE WISHING to donate at the Northwest office should call for an appointment. The hours for donors are Monday, Wednesday and Friday 10 a.m.-4 p.m., Tuesday and Thursday, 2-8 p.m. and Saturday, 9 a.m.-1 p.m.

Bloodmobiles will be in the northwest areas at the following times: Monday, Jan. 13, Kirk of Our Savior, 3660 Cherry Hill, Westland, 2:30-8:30 p.m.; Tuesday, Jan 21, Rosedale Gardens Presbyterian Church, 9801 Hubbard, Livonia, 2-8 p.m.; Thursday Jan. 23, Plymouth Elks, 41700 Ann Arbor Rd., Plymouth, 3-9 p.m.; Tues, Jan. 28, Our Lady of Loretta Church, 17175 Olympia Rd., Redford, 2-8 p.m.; Thursday, Jan.30, Jackson Elememtary School, 4420 Venoy, Westland, 1:30-7:30 p.m.

Packaging group schedules meeting

Great Lakes Packaging Association will hold a dinner meeting, Wednesday, Jan. 15, in Schweizer's, 260 Schweizer Place, Detroit.

The cocktail hour is at 5:30 p.m. and dinner at 6:30 p.m.

Robert Bishop, vice president of marking and sales, Imco Container Company, will make a presentation of Vinyl Chloride Monomer.

Reservations should be made through the office of J.E. Irvin, president of Great Lakes Packaging Association, no later than Monday, Jan. 13.

STATE SEN. CARL PURSELL embarked Wednesday on his new four year term as he took the oath New Year's Day during opening ceremonies from State Supreme Court Justice John W. Fitzgerald. He was reelected by voters in Wayne County's 19th senatorial district, and has won reassignment to the Senate Appropriations Committee.

Esch's intern looks forward to winning his own election

If U.S. Rep. Marvin Esch (R-Ann Arbor) is hearing footsteps these days, it may have something to do with the hiring of his newest legislative intern.

Robert Gary Ridner, who begins working for Esch this week, unabashedly admits that some day he'd like Esch's job.

"Believe it or not I'd like Esch's job," Ridner said. "He'll probably get mad at me for saying that but some day I hope to hold an elective office. I'm not shooting for the presidency but I would like to be a member of a legislature—state, local or hopefully national."

ROBERT G. RIDNER

AS AN INTERN Ridner will be spending the spring semester answering constituent letters, looking into federal agencies for answers to consumer requests, helping to prepare Esch's annual questionnaire and doing legislative research on bills pending in the House.

Ridner of 17204 Carol, Livonia, is a 20-year-old junior majoring in political science at the University of Kentucky where he is attending school on a four year Army ROTC schloarship.

"At the university there is an office of experimental education which directs students toward intern programs, and that's where I learned about the job with Esch.

"I had been told that most of Esch's interns were from the University of Michigan and most served in the summer so I thought I might have a shot at a job in the spring.

"I'm a Republican county delegate so I've had some contact with Esch and would have campaigned for him this past summer if I hadn't been attending school."

Although Ridner is "ecstatic" about his appointment he has had to deal with slurs connected with politics.

"When people find out I'm interested in politics the first thing they ask me is if I'm a crook," he said.

"I don't think politics is a dirty business., People I have met who hold offices have been straightforward and seem to be doing the best job they can under the circumstances."

RIDNER, who labels himself as "a conservative on most issues," calls the Watergate debacle "an unfortunate blow-up of normal happenings."

"Both parties engage in spying and whether it is intentional or not is another matter," he said.

"For instance, a person who becomes disillusioned with his own party can jump ranks and feed the opposing party a lot of information it never sought.

"The press became involved in Watergate and reported for the first time what has always been going on in political campaigns."

Ridner said even his parents who are not politically active would like to discourage him from entering politics.

"I guess I'm a bit of an egomaniac. The concept of power intrigues me and the way I see it, there are three avenues to power—politics, the military and business.

"Politics is the one I like best because it is a means of controlling the other two. And money flows to power so I think of politics as a means of making a pretty good living."

RIDNER SEES his internship as a learning experience for him.

"Hopefully just meeting the people I'll be in contact with will be an education in itself. I'll also be learning how laws are made, and how lobbyists and interests groups function. This experience may be what encourages me or discourages me from entering politics."

Besides the duties assigned to him by Esch, Ridner has set up his own goals. They include studying the roles of a legislative staff, looking into current legislative topics, and the functions of Congress in dealing with federal agencies.

While Ridner will not be paid a salary for the work he's doing for Esch, he will receive 12 hours of university credit and will be responsible for a reading list and writing a paper at th end of his internship.

Because he is involved in an ROTC program he will also be required to take a military science course at Georgetown University. An officer of Tau Kappa Epsilon at Kentucky, he will be staying with his fraternity brothers at George Washington University.

Ridner believes the biggest change he'll have to make is his style of dress.

"When you're used to wearing Levis every day to class, it's quite a change and a costly one to have to wear a suit every day."

Bud Guest returns with 'sunny side'

LIVONIA— Edgar A. (Bud) Guest Jr., a household name among radio listeners for 36 years, brought his popular "Sunny Side of the Street" talents to Livonia last week.

Guest, whose failing vision forced him into "semi- retirement" two years ago, unveiled his favorite stories for 100 members and guests at the Livonia Chamber of Commerce monthly membership luncheon.

The listeners at times threw their heads back and laughed or chuckled at the tales spun by Guest.

BUD GUEST

GUEST, 62, touched on his definition of semi-retirement, problems with attorneys and title searches during a property sale, and how he gained four endings from listeners for the same tale.

Guest admitted that he was once puzzled by a question from a junior high school student who visited WJR and interviewed him for a class assignment.

Guest thought he had heard most questions, such as where he was born and how long he has been with the station, until one youngster wanted to know, "What is your ambition?"

He said he was stumped, since his first impulse was to reply that he merely wanted to get to and from the station safely and keep his job.

He then recalled a poem written by his famous father, whose work was syndicated through 400 newspapers, emphasizing that his goal was "service to fellow man."

GUEST TOLD the chamber of the problem he encountered after he bought an 80 acre farm in Michigan's Thumb area.

After the deal was closed, Guest said he talked with an attorney who asked him, "Did you have the title (of the land) searched?"

"No," replied Guest.

"That was dumb," the lawyer commented in questioning if the farmer who sold the land to Guest actually owned it.

Guest agreed to have the attorney hold a title search.

IN ANOTHER case of a complicated title search, the federal government ordered a search for land and the plat on it in Louisiana.

The attorney submitted his report to the government, showing the history of the land's ownership back to 1803, when the government obtained what later became most of the country's midwest, in a $15 million purchase from France and later called the Louisiana Purchase.

The government wasn't satisfied with the title search and asked the lawyer to delve deeper.

He later responded with a serious-sounding report which traced the property through France, which obtained it from the Pope, who represented Jesus, the "heir apparent to Almighty God—who created Louisiana."

"I hope this complies with your request," the attorney's report closed.

"Don't dilly dally or delay, today is opening day."

Better bargaining needed

Tim Richard writes

It's a shame that Wayne County Circuit Court had to settle a problem between the Crestwood Board of Education and the teachers union.

It's a shame every time a school contract negotiation problem lands in any court. Economic problems should be settled in an economic arena, and a court is just the wrong place to deal with economics.

The legal profession couldn't be more wrong when it insists "ours is a government of laws, not a government of men." We're in constant messes in our local school districts—indeed, we almost had half of Wayne County teachers on strike last week—for precisely the opposite reason: We lean too much on law and courts and too little on good-faith, competent economic bargaining.

THE CURRENT popular cry is that the Legislature must repair the school bargaining law which inconsistently allows teachers to bargain through a union but vaguely prohibits strikes.

Judge George Bowles, speaking for himself and Judge Thomas Roumell in last week's Crestwood case, wrote, "We are reaping in this case the wild whirlwind of an inadequate labor law. Indeed, we hope that the governor and the Legislature in considering new legislation which is so desperately needed would declare as pre-eminent the best interests of the students and the school systems."

Well, yes, the law can be improved, but law and lawyers alone will never improve our school labor relations.

As my richly experienced colleague, R.T. Thompson, pointed out editorially last Thursday, the bitterness caused by a strike can persist for at least 40 years, disrupting church congregations, social ties, families and civic programs.

No law can prevent that. Law is only as good as the characters of the men and women who live under it.

CRESTWOOD STANDS in excelsis as the example of bad board-union relations because it has had something like seven major disputes in nine years and nearly caused thousands of teachers in other districts to "hit the bricks."

But Crestwood is not the only bad example. Plymouth has had a couple of strikes. Garden City, noted for its harmonious school system for years until 1974, will be unable to offer a 180-classroom day school year because of its bitter strike. Livonia, Wayne-Westland, South Redford — all have had problems.

When problems occur, teachers go on strike, and so the public jumps to the false conclusion that the teachers union is to blame. Actually, it takes two sides to make a labor contract, and there are usually two sides at fault to some degree when a strike occurs.

As Judges Bowles and Roumell said, "The majority (of the three-judge panel) concurs in Judge Rashid's holding that both parties are in open and flagrant defiance and violation of his honor's orders."

ON THE SURFACE, it appears the union won the Crestwood case because the court ruled the school board improperly fired the 184 teachers. But teachers should refrain from celebrating too quickly.

The court also "deplores resorting to any unlawful strikes, termed 'sympathy strikes,' that are in clear violation of collective bargaining contracts between parties not involved legally in this case. We find most regrettable any pressure teachers calculated to induce or encourage a favorable result one way or another, before this honorable court. Such tactics manifest a cynical lack of understanding of how a court functions and judges make decisions."

In other words, if teachers in Plymouth, the two Redfords, Garden City, Wayne-Westland and 11 other districts had also struck, they are served clear notice that they will be in big trouble.

The Crestwood union won on a legal technicality having to do with the tenure law. But the union would have been defeated and broken if any other industry had been involved. The economic fact of life is that hundreds of certified teachers are looking for work, and many will risk being branded "scab" in order to put bread on the table.

Teachers were in an enviable bargaining position while the education industry was growing and labor was in short supply. It's not true any longer, and union leaders will have to give their memberships that fact of life.

More than new laws, we need economic sophistication and mature wisdom on the parts of both school boards and teachers unions. Laws are less important than people.

The Stroller

Dressing sack feud

By W. W. EDGAR

If the pros and cons of the Crestwood teachers' strike have had you in a dither, would you believe there once was a battle between a board of education and a teacher over her mode of dress that lasted for years—and the teacher won?

It happened in the Pennsylvania Dutch country where Sally McIntyre, a robust, gray-haired woman had been teaching in the intermediate grades for so many years that she became an institution.

SHE TAUGHT at least three generations in our little town and The Stroller well recalls the day he entered her classroom for the first time. She placed her hand on his shoulder and said, "If you do as well as your father did, you'll be all right."

She was a maiden lady who lived with a bachelor brother and her word was law. She never spoke of such things as women's lib or women's rights but in any given assignment she could more than hold her own. She proved it over the years to win the right to dress as she pleased. And she was quite a teacher.

HER ONLY fault—if it could be called a fault—was that she insisted on wearing a skirt and blouse instead of dresses other teachers wore.

There's nothing wrong with a blouse, or a "dressing sack" as they were called. She wasn't built to wear loose blouses. She was on the obese side and, despite the fact that she was well endowed by nature, she refused to wear foundation garments.

More than once, this was called to the attention of the board of education, and while members frowned on her apparel, none had the courage to tell her.

It may seem strange that despite her lone fault, parents used to petition the board to have their children in her classes. More than once, disappointed mothers and dads stormed the board room to have their wishes granted.

It was the feeling about town that no one was properly educated unless you were in Sally McIntyre's classes. And woe be to anyone, parent or child, who referred to her as "Miss McIntyre."

ON THE first day of school each year, she would address the students. In reciting the rules of her room, she would ask that she be addressed "Teacher" and nothing else.

A stern taskmaster, she had a human side, too. She was the first teacher in our town that inaugurated an athletic program. She purchased tee shirts for the boys and blouses for the girls basketball team. What's more, she would sit on the players' bench and be the manager.

Come country fair time, she would take the class. She'd pay the streetcar fare, admission into the grounds, and entertain the pupils with refreshments along the midway. She was enjoying it even more than her students.

She literally was queen of all she surveyed and ruled with an iron hand. Yet along the way she left an imprint on the minds of her students and it was not uncommon to see groups of her "alumni" come from all sections of the country to visit her during the summer.

SHE WAS the most highly respected teacher our town ever had. Then one year a member of the younger generation was elected to the school board. The first thing he did was to protest the wearing apparel "of one of our teachers." The older board members just smiled.

They retorted, "If you don't like the way she dresses, why don't you just tell her."

"I will," he said.

But he never got the chance.

Hearing what had happened at the board meeting, "Teacher" waited her chance. It came one evening as the young man was strolling along her street and she spotted him.

Without waiting for his first word of protest "Teacher" let fly a verbal barrage the like of which a person seldom would hear.

She politely informed him she was being paid to teach school—not serve as a model for a dress shop.

SHE DUG even deeper when she told him that his job was to guide the policy of an educational program and never mind about her apparel—that she was going to wear what she wanted when she wanted.

So great was the barrage that the neophyte school board member apologized and never another word was said about her "dressing sack."

The Stroller wasn't home when she died, but she fought her fight to the end. She was buried in a "dressing sack."

How Dr. King's birth is remembered

BY SHERRY KAHAN

The birthday of the Black Nobel peace prize winner, who was shot by an assassin in 1968, will be noticed by some institutions in this area in 1975.

Dr. Martin Luther King, whose birthdate is Jan. 15, will be remembered in a few schools, libraries, churches and offices.

Starting next year Wayne County will declare a holiday in honor of Dr. King on the second Monday of January. This year, however, some Wayne County offices will be closed on Monday, Jan. 13, while others will close Wednesday, Jan. 15.

The Wayne County Health Department, whose offices in this area are on Merriman Road in Westland, next to the county hospital, will be closed Monday.

The county clerk's office will be closed on Monday in the City-County building, but county courts will be open both days.

The county treasurer's office will observe the Wednesday closing owing to the fact that an early printing of the tax bills stated the office would be closed that day.

The Wayne County Sheriffs Road Patrol, whose headquarters in this region is 3100 Henry Ruff, Westland, is always open.

SOME MEMBER libraries of the Wayne County Federated Library System will be closed on Wednesday.

If staffed by employes of Wayne County civil service, and if approval to close was given by the city in which they are located, these libraries will observe the holiday on Jan. 15.

Redford Township Library and the Garden City Library will close Wednesday.

No city halls in the area will be closed. While the Rev. Charles Adams, chairman of the Dr. King Holiday Steering Committee, and State Rep. Jackie Vaughn III are working to have the day declared a state holiday, no state offices will be closed

"I Never Met a House Plant I Didn't Like"

Jerry Baker, America's master gardener tells you how to have the healthiest, happiest house plants you ever saw. With his usual enthusiasm and good humor, Jerry Baker covers containers, soils, locations, and gives advice on how to combat pests and diseases.

Included are complete directions for making dish gardens, terrariums, hanging baskets and water gardens. He also offers some down-to-earth advice on gardening under lights and on raising such "special" plants as orchids, cacti, herbs and bulbs. He tells, too, how to keep gift plants in top condition, and how to make many of them bloom again.

"House of Many Shadows"

Barbara Michaels. Following a nearly fatal car accident, Meg Rittenhouse recovers physically, but still suffers from hallucinations which are both auditory and visual. A change of scene does not stop the hallucinations; instead, they become terrifying because the caretaker sees and hears them, too, and he has not been injured.

Thus, the author of "Witch" and The Dark on the Other Side" draws us into the search for an explanation. Discoveries of long-hidden mementos in the attic, local legend and gossip, and frightening glimpses of an age long past pile on each other, giving hints of a secret so horrifying that it will not remain buried.

"Gerald Ford and the Future of the Presidency"

J.F. terHorst Jerald terHorst, close friend and observer of Gerald Ford since 1946, became President Ford's first official appointment. He was selected to be White House Press Secretary, a post he held only 30 days, when he resigned in protest of the Nixon pardon. At the time of the appointment he was in the process of writing this biography of the President, which is also a study of the presidency, and an analysis of the traumatic effect of Watergate on that office.

Gail Godwin "The Odd Woman" Jane Clifford, a cool but timid "researcher" of other people's lives, is drawn to those who are dramatic, turbulent, visionary and self-assured, and is constantly measuring herself against them. An unexpected family death is the springboard for her journey toward "all she might become."

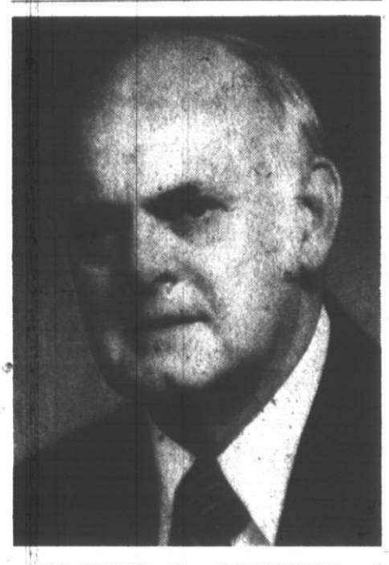
Francis Gwaltney "Idols and Axle Grease" When things got rough, when the depression made a man doubt himself and the war snatched away the town's sons, the people of the town still survived. They survived the hard times and the gut-wrenching growth of the country that just seemed to strangle small towns.

This is the story of one of the towns that, pieced together over the face of the land, made up America. It is also the story of a boy's growing into manhood and of the people he loved and idolized.

Jozsef Cardinal Mindszenty "Memoirs" Being published simultaneously in America and in Europe, "Memoirs" reveals for the first time the full story of the legendary hero-priest who has come to be regarded as a symbol of Christian and national resistance to communism. It is an extraordinary contribution to contemporary history—an eyewitness account of a country and its people under Communist domination in the Cold War era.

It also sets the record straight on the causes and circumstances of Mindszenty's departure from the embassy, his visit to the Vatican, and ultimately his deposition from archiepiscopal office in February 1974.

Donald Newlove "The Drunks" A novel about art and alcohol, "The Drunks" chronicles the descent into alcoholism—and recovery—of Leo and Teddy, the horn-playing Siamese twins first encountered in the authori's earlier novel, "Leo and Theodore", to which this is a self-contained sequel.



CHARLES S. HOURIGAN of Plymouth was recently promoted to second vice president of the instaloan division of the National Bank of Detroit. A graduate of the graduate school of consumer banking at the University of Virginia and an NBD employe for 26 years, Hourigan is head of the direct consumer loans department. He is a member of the Savoyard Club.

Recall campaign had 'grass roots' support

(Part II)

On June 20, 1949, the Circuit Court denied Police Chief Lee Sackett a further stay of his ouster. On June 22, Captain Carl Greenley was named acting chief of police. Sackett appealed to the State Supreme Court which refused his petition.

Meantime, the Plymouth Citizen's League continued to hold meetings intended to support Sackett and to oust City Manager Harold Cheek. The league finally decided that the only way to remove Cheek from office was to remove the commissioners who stood behind him.

A mass meeting was called to plan the recall of the four commissioners who were charged with being "high handed and undemocratic in refusing Sackett a chance to defend himself at a hearing and in refusing to hear charges against Cheek." (City Attorney Claude Buzzard had advised the commission that the charges against Cheek were too generalized to give the petition legal standing).

THE HIGHLY emotional atmosphere of the time, which apparently resulted in name-calling, was reflected in a statement by Kenneth Gust to the Plymouth Mail on June 23.

Referring to the composition of the Citizen's League, he said, "Our membership comes from all parts of the community and includes all factions and political opinions. The heart of the group is composed of ordinary working citizens who resent being called 'riff-raff' and 'non-thinkers.' "

Gust said the executive board of the league included Charles Bennett, Edward C. Hough, Cass Hough (all of Daisy), Edna M. Allen, Margaret Dunning, Tom Brock, Gladys Tillotson, and others.

A week later, the commissioners retorted that some prominent people whose names were on Gust's list told them they were surprised to see their names there. They did not, however, say who the people were.

On June 24, the Detroit News reported that circulation of recall petitions had been started in Plymouth. Four of the five commissioners were charged with "deliberate nonfeasance of office, misrepresentation of facts, and holding secret meetings." (The nonfeasance charge referred to the commission's practice of permitting the city manager to open contract bids without the commissioners being present. Lewis Goddard, one of the commissioners named, pointed out that the practice was permitted by the city charter).

PLYMOUTH—PAST AND PRESENT by Sam Hudson

AT A MEETING attended by 200 residents, Mrs. Whipple was applauded when she said she would resign when the four other commissioners were recalled. Half of those in attendance volunteered to circulate the petitions.

For the first time in the history of the city a recall of the commission was in motion. The Detroit newspapers give the action front page coverage. The newswires apparently circulated the story nationwide. Mayor Hartmann received one clipping from a friend who saw the story in a newspaper in Oregon.

The Citizen's League had many complaints against the city manager and the commissioners, but Kenneth Gust said the controversy had only two main issues:

- Did Sackett receive fair treatment from the city manager and the commission?
- Is Harold Cheek temperamentally capable of discharging the duties of city manager in a manner desired by the citizens of Plymouth?

All of the other issues, said Gust, were minor.

THE COMMISSIONERS said the issue was who was to run the city—the elected officials or "a disgruntled minority group who are determined to have their own way at any cost."

Many people had been misguided, misinformed, and "emotionally aroused with a sense of hate that cannot make for good government," the commissioners contended.

They noted that some people who signed the recall petition were among those who had previously complained about the window peeper and prowler problem and who had demanded that the city get trained police.

Mrs. Ruth Huston Whipple, the one commissioner who was not named on the petition, was quoted as saying, "This recall is their affair, not mine."

She denied accusations that she had a part in the movement to oust her colleagues. The other commissioners pointed out, however, that Tom Brock, a young veteran, and one of the leaders of the Citizen's League, was a constant visitor at the Whipple home.

Brock directed the door-to-door campaign for the league, and apparently with great efficiency. He organized a "grass roots" movement with block captains, doorbell ringers, baby sitters, and advice on absentee ballots. The league used a sound truck on the streets on the day of the election.

BUSINESS MEN who supported the four commissioners paid for full-page ads in the Plymouth Mail urging the citizens to retain their elected officials. Phil Barney, who owned a local restaurant, wrote to the "Mail" supporting the commissioners as honest, capable and conscientious public officials.

Judge Nandino Perlongo also favored retention of the commissioners and of the city manager. The alternative, he told the paper, was that "in the future, no city manager will be in position to proceed with city affairs without feeling the intimidating influence of some misinformed citizen."

(Part III will continue the story of the Recall).

New law can present taxing problems

By MARGARET MILLER

How do you know which food items you buy will carry a sales tax under Michigan's new law?

It depends, says the state department of the treasury, on who's going to eat it. And when.

Exempt from the sales and use tax, says the statute that went into effect Jan. 1, are "prescription drugs for human use and food for human consumption except prepared food intended for immediate consumption as defined by law."

That means, said a spokesman in the treasury department office in Lansing, that the to-tax-or-not-to-tax consideration is not just the nature of the edible but also when it is to be consumed and by whom.

SEEMS SIMPLE enough as the supermarket cashiers click off the tax-exempt groceries—bread, eggs, canned goods—and hit the tax key on their sophisticated cash registers when they ring up items like paper napkins and detergent.

And it's also pretty self-evident that a restaurant meal involves "prepared food intended for immediate consumption" and thus gets the tax.

But there are some sticky areas, aside from those of the candied-apple variety.

FOR INSTANCE, there is the local dog owner who insisted he shouldn't be stung for a tax on dog food because he and his pet shared alike.

He made it past one cashier without paying the tax, but he probably won't win the argument next time. Guidelines on taxing, mailed out by the treasury department late in December, clearly lists pet food and supplies under taxable items.

"Dog food is taxed even if you're going to eat it yourself," the spokesman said.

THE "IMMEDIATE consumption" stipulation provided the key to whether the sales tax is added to such an item as a bag of potato chips.

Buy it in a supermarket, along with a bunch of other groceries, and you don't pay a tax. It's a grocery item produced for home consumption.

But go to a movie theater and buy the same chips to chomp while you enjoy the show and you do pay the tax. Then the chips come under the definition of "food or drink prepared and served for immediate consumption at or near the premises or ordinarily sold on a takeout basis for immediate consumption either on or off the premises."

Sanders ice cream stores in this area are among those that have had to make some fine distinctions.

"An ice cream cone," said a Sanders employe, "gets a sales tax if it is dipped at the fountain."

But if you buy one of the packaged cones from the store's freezer section, there's no tax. (Presumably, though, the consumption would have to be just as immediate, considering the drippy nature of ice cream.)

AT THE SUPERMARKET, the edible items still taxable are alcoholic beverages, cocktail mixes, non-prescription drugs, including cough drops and antacid mints, and hot prepared foods such as barbecued chicken and ribs.

The latter qualify under the section that provides taxing "food which is cooked and maintained at a temperature higher than the surrounding air temperature prior to sale."

In listing the taxable edibles, the treasury department spokesman suggested a tax also might be put on a prepared, wrapped sandwich picked up at the meat counter of a supermarket, or even the snacks kids purchase at a drug store on the way home from school.

It's up to the store to make the decision, the spokesman added.

But a random survey in this area indicated the youngsters won't have to cough up the extra penny for snack tax.

No store checked is considering taxing such purchases.

ALTHOUGH THE GUIDELINES specify that prepared food (taxable) may be defined as "food of drink arranged on a plate or platter," this does not apply to frozen dinners. "Not for immediate consumption—most people like to heat them first," was the explanation.

And packages of seeds, though they may turn into edible vegetables, are considered non-edible at the checkout stand.

One item you DON'T eat carries no tax. That's the returnable bottle that holds your soda pop. But the returnable bottle that contains beer—if you can find one—is subject to tax.

WHEN GROCERY shopping in this area, some customers are finding that purchases go through with tax added or not added automaticallly, while others are asked to separate non-taxable items from the taxable as they take them from the cart. The difference is not in store policy but in cash register age.

The newer ones have a special key that records tax item by item and the older ones do not.

As a handy guide, the treasury department has listed the following supermarket items that still carry a tax:

Alcoholic beverages, cocktail mixes, liquid and dry, household supplies, hot prepared foods, health and beauty aids, ice, paper products, pet foods and supplies.

Others are prepared foods, soap and soap products, toothpaste, water (mineral and distilled), tobacco and non-prescription medicines.

Those interested in a copy of the tax guidelines may obtain it from the Sales and Use Tax Division, Department of the Treasury, Lansing, Mich., 48922.

Sand scenes fill these terrariums

By MARGARET MILLER

A western sun sets in a blaze of orange and yellow beyond dark mountains. A sailboat glides peacefully on a blue lake. Graceful birds wing across the skies.

You find these pictures, not on framed canvas, but on the inside of glass bowls planted with cactus. The medium is not oil, acrylic or water color but colored sand.

This newest of art forms, not surprisingly called sand painting, is a do-it-yourself project Monday and Friday evenings in The Potting Shed, part of the Westland Garden Center at 32593 Cherry Hill.

There, people who want something unusual in a terrarium are invited to come in and make their own under the guidance of Dick and Joan Melow, proprietors, and Lanny Chamberlain, also well schooled in the new art.

Workshops begin at 7 p.m. and are limited to six or eight persons— "so we can give enough personal attention," said Melow.

CLASS MEMBERS buy the container, $10 for a 10-inch round bowl or $12 for a snifter. The colored sand, potting soil and charcoal are furnished, along with instruction in the techniques that these experts insist are really very simple.

After the sand scene is "painted" around a base of soil for planting, the customers can buy a selection of cactus plants to top their terrariums.

"Then we finish them up with the planting," Melow said.

SAND PAINTING, Chamberlain explained, is an adaptation of an art first used by the Navaho Indians in the southwest.

"It was an art practiced only by the priests and leaders of the tribes," he said. "Not an everyday thing with those people. It would be done to drive away evil spirits or cure an illness or petition for good fortune."

The first dyes for the sands came from natural sources, berry juices and minerals and cacti.

In more recent Navajo history, the art form has been used by other members of the tribes for decorative purposes, and then in the last year it was introduced to floral arrangers through workshops using a new product, terrasand.

DICK MELOW did a run-through of the making of a sand-painting terrarium. It took him less than an hour, and his only tools were a bent iced tea spoon, small paint brush and knitting needles in sizes 1 to 5. The colored sands are held in paper cups.

"You start with a layer of sand," he said, pouring in some in a neutral beige shade, "and then begin the build-up of potting soil for the plants to live in."

Melow put potting soil atop the first layer of silicone sand, and then put in some charcoal "to keep the soil from going sour."

THE SAND PICTURES are made by pouring the sand in carefully in different colored layers, the beige and a dark brown in layers suggested a desert terrain. Then came mounds of terra cotta sand for foothills and black sand for distant mountains, and finally a mixture of yellow and orange sand—not too well mixed because streaking is desirable— for the sunset sky.

Birds were added to the scene by putting in a tiny amount of black sand and then poking a depression in the center of the line with a knitting needle. An orange sun started as a mound atop a hill, and was rounded off by pushing in the yellow sky color, again with the trusty needle.

TERRARIUMS with sand painting bases and dish gardens are turned out in workshops in Westland.

Sailboats and grass also can be made with the needle manipulated carefully, Melow said.

THE COLORED SAND is built up at the edge of the container, with a core of potting soil filling most of the space.

"It's very important to keep the soil well tamped down," Melow said, "using his iced tea spoon for the purpose. "That locks the sand in place."

Made properly, the finished terrarium can be moved without any problem, Melow said, but of course it shouldn't be tipped.

The final step is putting in the cacti and maybe a couple of pieces of driftwood or stones and then covering with a layer of the base color of sand.

"We recommend the cactus," Melow said, "because it's hardy and needs little care and comes in so many varieties. Two or three tablespoons of water a month is enough for these plants. The sand, incidentally, is colorfast so watering won't make the colors run."

These are harder, Melow said, and the secret is to stick to no more than three basic colors.

MELOW SAID HE BEGAN the workshops about six weeks ago and has had people come from all over the metropolitan area.

"We made 35 or 40 to sell for the holidays, and we were cleaned out before Christmas Eve," he added. "I'd really rather have people come and make their own. It's not that difficult, and everyone seems to really enjoy it."

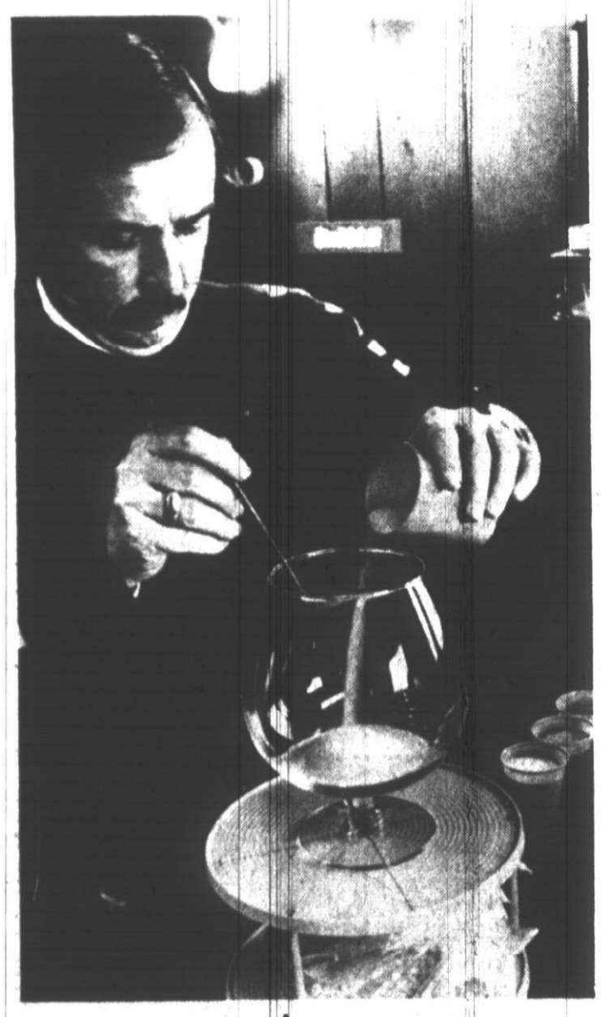
Melow admitted the sense of perspective he uses in his landscaping business and when he occasionally paints for pleasure probably stands him in good stead in sand painting. "But people seem to pick this up very quickly," he added. "One woman made about 20 to give for Christmas after attending a workshop."

THE MELOWS have had their landscape business in Westland for several years and added the plant department within the last year.

They plan other workshops, Melow said, with some on dish gardens to be scheduled soon. These would use small plants to make a scene effect.

"I look for the indoor plant business to boom as more people become interested in ecology and want to continue this interest year-round," he said.

"Our new customers recently have been young householders, and there have been a lot of children putting Christmas money into unusual plants to enjoy."



DICK MELOW begins a sand painting with a layer of beige sand in a snifter.

Hunts celebrate 50 wedded years

A recent dinner reception in Arizona marked the 50th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Hunt, longtime Plymouth residents.

The party was held in the home of their daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Cliff Proehl of Mesa.

The couple's four other children and their spouses helped host the affair, which was attended by some 90 guests.

Howard and Grace Hunt were married in Salem, Mich., on Dec. 6, 1924.

They spent most of their married life in Plymouth, where Mr. Hunt worked for the Ann Arbor Constructon Co. and Mrs. Hunt was employed by Whitman & Barnes.

Both now retired, they spend their winters in the Conquistador Trailer Park in Mesa and their summers in Bellaire, Mich. They are affiliated with the Masons, Eastern Star and the Elks lodge.

Everything you want to know

Have a friend who adores ballooning? Or a relative whose life would be made complete by reading "Alabama's Master Plan for a Crime Laboratory Delivery System?"

Then tell him about a bulletin published by Uncle Sam called "Selected U.S. Government Publication."

Issued by the superintendent of documents at the U.S. Government Printing Office in Washington, D.C., the pamphlet reports on a wide range of information booklets that can be purchased by the public at prices from 25 cents ("Nutrients and Food for Health") to $11.65 ("Shore Protection Manual" — a three-volume set.)

For every buff there is a booklet.

For the American history buff there is one called "If Elected" about the unsuccessful candidates for the presidency. Others are called "The History of Prisoner of War Utlilization by the U.S. Army, 1776-1945."

A third is titled "Rum War at Sea."

For those planning to get lost, not to worry. Just be sure you have "Survival" with you at all times.

Environmentalists can choose between "River of Life: Water," "The Economic Damages of Air Pollution" or "Fish Kills Caused By Pollution in 1972."

Deep thinkers in business and industry might enjoy curling up with "Pressurized Fluidized Bed Combustion" or "Application of Systems Analysis to the Operation of a Fire Department."

In addition there are books and booklets about weather, food, sociology, bicycling, ceramics, airplanes, money, transportation, space etc. You name it and they will probably have it.

Copies of this booklet listing selected government publications may be secured by writing the superintendent of documents, U.S. Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C.

Livonia Scouts are delegates

Nanette Brown and Patricia Holden, residents of Livonia and members of Senior Girl Scout Troop 1176, were selected to represent the Girl Scouts of Metropolitan Detroit as delegates to the National Scout Council meeting to be held next fall in Washington, D.C.

Twenty-two Scouts, representing various neighborhoods throughout the GSMD council area, applied for selection as delegates. Each girl submitted an essay on why she'd like to be chosen as a delegate.

Most applicants have been Scouts since Brownies and are very involved in school, church and community activities.

Besides Nanette and Patricia, two alternate delegates were selected. They are Marie Foley of Livonia Troop 1081, and Vickie Hollingsworth of northwest Detroit Troop 733.

Gourmets' resort rates 'Magnifique'

By TOM DONOGHUE

VAL-DAVID, QUEBEC—One word describes Hotel La Sapiniere.

Magnifique is this resort - gourmet center, 60 miles north of Montreal in Canada's Laurentian Mountains.

During a ski week in the Laurentians at Gray Rocks Inn in St. Jovite in the Mont-Tremblant area, an evening at La Sapiniere can't be overlooked.

The Quebec Ministry of Tourism has given it five fleur-de-lys in the official Hotel Guide (only two other resort hotels in the province have this rating).

La SAPINIERE also has received the highest possible rating of three forks to show the excellence of its food. And to complement the "three forks" it has a wine cellar unmatched in Canada with more than 200 selections, most of which are not available elsewhere.

But for this sports writer in the Laurentians on a ski junket, one fork and one bottle of wine proved to be enough to handle.

Jacques Brule, master of reservations and conventions for La Sapiniere, first greeted me.

Chef Marcel Kretz quickly appeared with a tray of herring, shrimp, and Tartare, Camembert and Gerardmer cheeses.

La Sapiniere is "home" for the Montreal Canadians during hockey playoff time, and Brule quickly added, "When the Canadians make the playoffs that is."

AFTER A tour of the hotel which accommodates 120 guests, it was into the dining hall and an introduction to Maitre Christian Simon.

From an appetizer card that also included burgundy snails, malpeque oysters, melon, leek vinaigrette, herring fillet, smoked salmon and oxtongue salad I chose chicken liver pate en croute with truffles.

The Cave Lounge offers wine and cheese and special kind of decor that makes you feel like drinking more wine and tasting an extra wedge of cheese.

La Sapiniere -Five 'Fleur-de-lys' strong

Next came a selection of French onion soup over consomme aux pates, oyster soup, chilled vichyssoise and vegetable juice.

The wine manager, attired in a colorful custume complete with tasting apparatus, entered the scene, and after glancing through a 24-page wine list, the selection was Mouton Cadet.

Next came the main dish. My choice was roast prime rib of Canadian beef au jus with fresh horseradish. The 12 other mouthwatering picks were broiled or boiled live lobster in drawn butter, cheese omelet, scampis provencale au gratin on rice, fillet of fresh dore amandine, fresh salmon trout meuniere, grilled beef fillet brochette with natural brown Arkansas rice, also grilled Canadian lambchops, chicken in red burgundy wine, veal cutlet saute cordon bleu, calf's sweetbreads saute grenobloise, cold half lobster mayonnaise garnished, and cold roast beef.

Then there was the pick of rissole or boiled potatoes, buttered fresh green beans, ratatouille a la nicoise and chickory vinaigrette.

THE DESERT LIST consisted of everything from a cheese tray to French pastries to stewed rhubarb.

And to cap off the meal there was a lime blossom-mint infusion to drink.

The cost of the meal - $11.90.

A different menu is prepared every day and you may select from the varied list depending on your taste.

The resort which has tabbed itself as somewhat of a "honeymoon hotel" charges $26 to $48 for single and $20 to $36 for double rooms a day.

The resort does not offer a ski week but does sport cross country skiing and plans for nearby ski centers.

PERHAPS THE most intriguing item at La Sapiniere is the wine cellar, which I was able to tour following the dinner. Below the dining hall there is a cave like setting of little round tables with small kegs as chairs.

This is where guests may sample wine and cheese.

Off the cave lounge is the wine cellar where more than 16,000 bottles of wine are kept at a temperature between 55 and 57 degrees.

The wine prices vary from $4 a bottle for Canadian Jordan Valley wine to $200 for Romanee Conti. There are more than 200 selections of wine, 50 per cent of those from France, 20 per cent from Spain and the remaining 30 per cent from Germany, Italy, Canada and Portugal.

The hotel is impressive, the wine cellar admirable, and the food sumptuous.

Tradition perpetuates pleasant memories

By DUGLASS DUGLASS

What would our lives be without tradition? What terrible fatigue would overwhelm humanity if it only had to concern itself with the future?

Tradition represents a momentary pause in our course of toil - repose and the backward glance toward the past - the comparison of today and yesterday. Tradition brings back to life those whom we have loved, those to whom we owe the present and the future.

What, after all, is a museum? It is just an exhibition of monuments of the past. In every age civilized men collected mementos of the past so that living and future generations could draw from them inspiration founded on a solid basis.

Daily life is a struggle. Tradition is peace of mind. And that is why we continually create new traditions by instinct if not through feeling. All artistic manifestations are somehow based on tradition.

TRADITION PERPETUATES the moralistic religions. Tradition elevates everything it touches. Tradition even directs the art of eating. Each country has its own culinary tradition even if it only consists in the arrangement of meals.

An English breakfast is quite different from the French cafe au lait. Why? It's not due to climate because the English breakfast will follow an Englishman to Bangkok.

It is tradition which makes the French eat crepes on Shrove Tuesday. It was tradition which, for centuries, obliged Russians of all levels of society to exchange hard-boiled eggs at Easter as we do here in America.

By following traditions we commemorate those who have transmitted them. We bring back to life those who are no longer with us and we perform a good deed, since the dead are not altogether dead as long as there are those amongst the living who evoke their memory.

THESE ARE the famous words of author Dr. Edouard de Pomiane, renowned for the book "Cooking in 10 Minutes" and his scientific knowledge of food, however charmingly carefree his approach to cooking may be:

To prepare a dinner for a friend is to put into the cooking all one's affection and good will, all one's gaiety and zest so that after a lapse of cooking time, a waft of happiness escapes from beneath the lid.

DOVER SOLE SAUTE BOUQUETIERE

Recipe for Four Covers (Persons)

4 frozen dover sole size 16/20
Have on hand some seasoned salt, flour and oil, margarine or butter for cooking the sole

For the Sauce:

2 tbs. butter
2 tbs. flour
2 cups cream, powdered may be used (scald)
White pepper
½ cup dry white wine
A pinch of nutmeg
And some salt (kosher)

Suggested Vegetables for the Bouquetiere:

Canned jumbo white asparagus
Canned Belgium carrots
Canned artichoke hearts
Baked tomatoes stuffed
Petits Pois (small green peas), frozen
Three large silver dollar mushrooms (fresh)
Fresh seedless green grapes warmed slightly in butter and a few drops water
3 oz. imported Danish prawns or Eureka Bay shrimp from California.

Method

To make a cream sauce the consistency of liquid velvet is simple if you scald your milk first (do not boil, it will curdle), melt the butter and add the flour. Stir and cook the now roux over a low heat momentarily.

Whip the roux with a wire whisk (tine) into the milk until it thickens. Add salt, white pepper (black will show up in the sauce), nutmeg, then slowly add the wine that has been heated with the small shrimp and mushrooms.

If the shrimp are frozen, defrost them first, then add them to the mushrooms that are sauting in a little butter. This will create an emulsion of flavor with the wine, shrimp and earthy mushrooms.

I would add about 2 tbs. of butter for a velvety texture. However, so many people have hangups with cholesterol that I just leave it to your better judgment. Even an egg yolk and some whipping would be super. Set this mixture aside or store, however, until ready.

Method for Buying, Preparing, Cooking and Serving Dover Sole

Sole comes in different sizes. The most popular sizes are 16/20 and 20/24. The numbers refer to ounces per sole with the head on. If possible, have the poissoniere (fish butcher) skin and remove the head and the fine bones alongside the fish.

Cooking

In a thin black pan or copper fish pan heat vegetable oil enough to cover the pan with a dollop of butter on medium high heat.

Season the sole with seasoned salt on both sides. Then dust lightly in a mixture of flour and whole wheat bread crumbs if available. Gently set in the hot oil with the splash away from you.

Turn when golden brown and set in a 375-degree oven for about six to nine minutes.

Set on your favorite flat serving dish (it should be heatproof). With a flat instrument like a cake spatula, separate the pieces by starting in the center, gently pushing the fish away from you. Pick up the bone at the widest point. It should come off very simply. Your spatula will loosen any particles that stick.

Now you have four filets, two at the bottom together and the top two separated. Spoon the shrimp ragout, or sauce if you like, into the center of the fish. Close it by just putting the two top pieces back together.

Heat the vegetables that you choose for your bouquetiere. Remember, however, to season them. The mixture for the sole (seasoned salt) will do nicely. Drain and toss with butter or margarine. For two interesting effects, use vegetables of the following color:

1. Vert Pret: All shades and tones of green and white
2. Orange, red, brown, yellow, white and green in that order, or similar.

NOTE, a tomato may be stuffed with left over shrimp pudding and a slice of Swiss cheese. After the bouquetiere is assembled, set in the oven to reheat. Then serve and that's another story.

Any dry white wine would be honored to be served with this dish. Recommended: Riesling Napa Valley '73 California, Johannisberger Klaus Riesling Rhein '72.

Getting Around

By ETHEL SIMMONS

Wine tasting with Les Amis du Vin (Friends of Wine) is serious business.

At a recent monthly wine-tasting at Glen Oak Golf and Country Club in Farmington Hills, members of the society were grouped at small tables, six wine glasses lined up vertically and portentously in front of each place.

After an aperitif, the program began with a surprisingly easy-going talk by guest speaker Bern C. Ramey, author of the "Pocket Dictionary of Wines."

For the tasting—French wines that evening—a card listed each wine, the region it was from, and a place for comments.

YOU'RE JUST supposed to sip, leave a lot or at least a little in each glass, so you can continue to compare tastes throughout the evening.

Bread and cheese provided counterbalance.

An educational society, Les Amis du Vin stresses learning about wines and the mood was earnest, rather than one of joie de vivre.

My scribbled comments, which I wanted to keep hidden from everybody else—what if I said the wrong thing?—ranged from "not memorable" to "gutsy—good."

DON'T KNOW if these are the things you're supposed to say about wine. Connoisseurs seem to have a language of their own. But aren't we all a little intimidated if we don't really know our palates and how to talk about them?

Each gentleman at the table served in turn as sommelier, requiring a certain amount of talent in apportioning the bottle, since he was requested to serve himself last.

There was a "no smoking" rule so you wouldn't disturb your neighbor. We were asked to swirl the wine in the glass, to stir the molecules, heightening the fragrance which is a percentage of taste. Then, to put your nose in the glass and smell.

Wines sampled included a 1973 Cabernet D'Anjou and a Margaux, St. Esteph, Chateau Cantegrive and Chateau Latour Blanch, all 1970.

TASTERS AND drinkers don't necessarily go together. Most of the people at my table didn't try to down all the wine from each glass.

At the end of the session, tasters' glass still held lots of the red or white.

INTERVIEWING CHEFS and gourmet cooks for The Good Life, I've discovered one thing: These have got to be the friendliest people around.

It makes sense. After all, no matter how much you love to cook, you can't cook for yourself alone, or just the family, if you want to concoct a lot of scrumptious dishes.

You've got to have somebody to appreciate. While I'm not excluding the fact that your family may love your cooking, the more hungry mouths to feed, the happier the gourmet cook.

Sharing is something that comes naturally to good cooks.

THEY ARE inclined to watch you, and well they should, as you take the first bite of one of their specialties. If it's as good as they think it's going to be, they are delighted.

It is a comforting feeling to see someone made happy while you get a chance to stuff yourself.

Glenn Rockets humble GC East, 66-57

By TOM DONOGHUE
Sports Editor

It was the "night of defenses" and "almost upsets" on the area prep 12 game basketball card.

Seven contests were decided by five points or less with the remaining five ranging from a 10 to 57 point margins.

Suburban Eight action saw an underdog Allen Park squad almost pull off an upset with Fred Thomann's highly touted Plymouth Salem Rocks just getting by, 42-39. Bentley routed Trenton, 72-48, and Edsel Ford nipped Redford Union, 59-55.

Westland John Glenn remained on top of the Northwest Suburban loop with an easy, 66-57 win over Garden City East, while Franklin slowed it down to a 40-35 victory over Thurston.

Pat Montagano's Churchill Chargers missed at the free throw line in the final seconds to fall to unbeaten Northville in the Western Six, 43-42. Plymouth Canton tipped Walled Lake Western in overtime, 67-65.

The 57 point mauling was in the Inter-Lakes loop where Stevenson High destroyed a sophomore-junior team, Milford Lakeland, 89-32.

Garden City West handed Melvindale its first loss, 45-42, to move into a three-way tie for first in the Tri-River League along with Cherry Hill.

The final three outings, with area clubs showing just two wins in 26 games, saw Clarenceville fall to Andover, 77-54; Redford St. Mary trounce Bishop Borgess, 54-44; and St. Agatha bow to Orchard Lake St. Mary, 50-47.

Plymouth Salem set the stage for a Suburban Eight showdown this Friday (Jan. 17) with league unbeaten Dearborn (5-0). The Rocks are 4-1 in the league, and host Dearborn. Both clubs sport 8-1 overall marks.

The Rocks found things rough at Allen Park. After taking a 14-4 first quarter lead, Allen Park outscored Salem, 22-11, in the second stanza to lead at the half, 26-25.

Allen Park held onto that lead and with one minute remaining, Salem fought back to tie it at 39-all. Jim Ellinghausen stole the ball for Salem and Eric Agardy (No. 2 scorer in the area), hit one of two at the free throw line.

Agardy then intercepted an Allen Park pass and tossed to Dan Moore who was fouled and made both ends of a one-and-one to push it to 42-39, with just three seconds remaining and the Rocks had survived the scare.

Salem wound up, 17 of 38 from the floor for 45 per cent and Allen Park, 13 of 44, for a 30 per cent in a slow down semi- stall.

For the first time, Salem did not sport one player in double scoring figures. Phil Beyer paced Allen Park with 20.

Larry Jackson's Bentley Bulldogs broke open a slim 34-30 halftime lead against Trenton with a 37-17 margin in the second half.

It was Bentley's fifth win in nine outings.

The other Suburban Eight contest saw Redford Union give another one away. The now 4-5 Panthers jumped off to a 23-16 first quarter lead, but saw that lead dwindle away .

RU wound up 23 of 69 from the floor for 33 per cent.

The Spartans of Stevenson High remained one step behind Pontiac Northern in the Inter-Lakes conference. Stevenson struck for 17, 24, 22 and 26 points while holding Milford to eight, 10, five and nine points respectively.

Stevenson is 3-1 in the league, 6-4 overall. Northern, which topped Stevenson, 67-51, is 4-0 in the loop.

The Spartans showed all 13 players breaking into the scoring column. The club hit 36 of 63 from the field for a 57 per cent.

John Glenn is making short work of copping top honors in the Northwest loop. With Thurston the only club for the Rockets to conquer, Glenn is all alone in first at 4-0 and shows a 10-1 mark overall.

The Rockets led Garden City East, 15-13, after one quarter and 33-21 at the half. It was all over in the third with Billy Joe Young's Panther falling behind 54-37.

Glenn finished 28 of 46 from the floor for 60 per cent and East, 25 of 61 for 41 per cent. Terry Johnson put on a show for Glenn with an eight for nine performance from the floor and 18 points total.

In what Franklin coach Bob Visser tabbed "our best defensive effort in seven years", the Patriots ousted Thurston, 40-35. It was Franklin's second triumph against five losses and Thurston's sixth defeat in nine tries.

Dave Wesley headed the Franklin assault with four blocked shots and 10 points.

Chris Babler and his crew from Garden City West picked up steam by knocking down previously unbeaten Melvindale, 45-42.

Melvindale, Cherry Hill and West now share that top slot in the Tri-River-all with 4-1 marks. Overall West is 8-2. Dave Niles paced the West attack with 14 points.

In the Western Six, the unbeaten Mustangs of Northville beat the "tight collar" and slipped by a now 3-7 Churchill squad, 43-42.

Churchill had its chance when Matt Foster stepped up to the free throw line with a one-and-one situation, 19 seconds remaining and Northville up, 41-40.

Foster missed and Scott Leu converted two from the Northville line to wrap up the Mustang win.

It took the Chiefs of Plymouth Canton an extra three minutes, but they bounced Walled Lake Western in overtime, 67-65. It was Canton's second win against two losses in the Western Six and its fifth overall in nine outings.

Tom Close sent it into overtime for Canton with a charity toss on a technical foul by Western, when a player slammed the ball to the court after a violation.

A free throw by Dave Edwards was all Canton could muster in the first two minute of overtime as Western got off to a 65-62 lead.

Don Lloyd popped in two free throws for Canton and Keith Osborn a field goal and charity toss to give the Chiefs the win.

St. Agatha dropped No. 9 in a close nip-and-tuck affair with Orchard Lake St. Mary, 50-47. It was tied at 46-all with one minute remaining with free throw conversions telling the story.

Bloomfield Andover clobbered Clarenceville, 77-54, for the Trojan's eighth defeat in nine games. Clarenceville hit only 21 of 59 from the field for 36 per cent while Andover connected on 33 of 58 for 57 per cent.

Bishop Borgess remained the solo area winless club.

Churchill rips Bentley, 9-3

The hockey team that "was favored to take it all" and didn't in the Observer & Eccentric's George Gee tourney has now set its guns on the Suburban Prep hockey loop.

In the showdown of the unbeatens, Adam Mitchell's Chargers tore apart tourney champion Bentley, 9-3. Churchill is now 6-0 in the loop.

Churchill outshot Bentley, 40-15. It was 4-0 after one period, and 6-1 at the end of two.

Bentley coach Mike Dudley set himself up for all sorts of second guessing when he started Tim Oakley in the nets. On the bench was the tourney's most valuable player Kevin Stachelski.

"I play my goalies equal," commented Dudley. "And I'll never pull a kid if he is trying."

And as for the overall aspect of the Churchill bombarding, Dudley said, "What we didn't give Churchill on a silver platter, they took. "No excuses. We gave them five goals and got beat bad."

Kevin Kardos continued his offensive sparkle with three goals pushing his mark to 26 goals and 24 assists in 10 games. Todd Bond also netted three goals and one assist in the Charger attack.

The other loop battle saw Tom Pacion record a shutout for Stevenvon over Southfield Lathrup, 5-0. The Spartan goalie turned away 25 shots.

Scoring the three goal hat-trick for Stevenson was Jerry DiRusso. Box scores:

Churchill mauls Lathrup, 14-3

Adam Mitchell's Churchill Chargers picked up the pieces that had been shattered by Livonia Franklin in the Observer & Eccentric's George Gee hockey tourney and kicked off 1975 with an overpowering 14-3 victory over Southfield Lathrup.

Churchill outshot Lathrup, 42 to 13, for the fifth win in the Suburban Prep loop in five outings. For Lathrup, it was defeat No. 3 against one tie.

Forward Todd Bond paced the Chargers with four goals. Kevin Kardos and Jeff Traux followed up with three apiece. It was Churchill, 4-0, after one period, 11-1 after two and an 11 goal margin at the final buzzer.

Thurston splashes Taylor, 115-54

Thurston High came up with a first in every event to swamp Taylor Center in a non-league swim meet, 115-54.

It was Thurston's third win against one loss.

GETTING THE GOODS TO MARKET

Meijer buyers travel throughout the states and to many foreign lands looking for the right combination of quality and price that will provide "Why Pay More" values for our customers right here in Michigan.

An important aspect of that buying decision involves the method and cost of getting the product on the shelf for our customers.

The Meijer Traffic Department is helpful in determining the most appropriate means of shipping. Such factors as reliability, time restrictions, perishability of the product as well as the shipping cost must be considered.

Sometimes we drop ship the merchandise directly to each store right from the manufacturer. Many times, however, we are able to make a better purchase by having the merchandise delivered directly to our Distribution Centers in Grand Rapids or Lansing.

Merchandise comes to the area by truck, ship, train and plane, but the final leg of the journey to the Meijer Distribution Centers is by train or truck. Boxcars and trucks arrive daily at the center. Much of the merchandise is processed and shipped directly to the stores on Meijer trucks and some is stocked for the store's future needs.

Transportation costs are a more important part of a goods cost than many people realize. We at Meijer try to do our best towards efficient distribution of products from manufacturer to shelf and help in keeping prices as low as possible.

INCOME TAX TIME IS APPROACHING

Now is the time to start preparing your records for next years Income Tax. Did you know that prescriptions can be tax deductible for those people who itemize deductions on their Income Tax Return? They are itemized as part of your medical expenses. One never knows in advance whether prescriptions will amount to enough to be deductible, but it doesn't hurt to keep records in the event they can be used.

The Meijer Pharmacy has forms available for you to use for your record keeping of all prescriptions you purchase during 1975. These forms are available without charge. So the next time you're near one of the many Meijer Pharmacies, stop by and ask your pharmacist for a prescription record form.

We don't know if our pharmacists will be able to help you with your Income Tax, but they are always ready to assist you with any questions you might have regarding your prescription requirements.
